

I have become extremely concerned about the power being granted to large, private communications companies, and how that power is being used. These conglomerates are becoming so controlling that they are beginning to affect the way news is processed.

We need to have the leavening influence of small, public communication companies, who are better able to deal with local issues. We also need to hear the "other side" when looking at particular issues. The way "Clear Channel" is working, the information becomes very one sided.

Please return the public airways to the public. These public airways were not meant to be controlled by media conglomerates.
